Symantec™ Mail Security for SMTP will soon be discontinued
Starting November 2, 2009, Symantec Mail Security for SMTP will begin moving into retirement (End of Life). If your organisation is currently using one of the products listed here, you have several options to ensure that you continue to receive industry-leading security for your messaging systems:

- Symantec Mail Security for SMTP standalone product
- Symantec Mail Security for SMTP as a part of Symantec Multi-tier Protection
- Symantec Mail Security for SMTP as a part of Symantec Information Foundation

Know your migration and entitlement options
1. If your organisation has an active licensing contract, you are entitled to a Symantec Brightmail Gateway software subscription at no charge:
   - For standalone Symantec Mail Security for SMTP customers, Symantec will send new Brightmail Gateway licence files for you to use
   - For Multi-tier Protection bundle customers, use your existing Multi-tier Protection licences to activate Symantec Brightmail Gateway
   - For Information Foundation bundle customers, use your existing Information Foundation licences to activate Symantec Brightmail Gateway

2. If your licence is currently up for renewal, you can upgrade to Symantec Brightmail Gateway, Symantec™ Protection Suite Enterprise Edition, or Symantec MessageLabs™ Hosted Email Security and get messaging protection that's even more robust than before:
   - Symantec will make it easy to upgrade, activate your new licences, and make the transition. Depending on which option you choose, special offers may apply.
   - See the next page to learn more about your product migration choices.
